CINCINNATI, MONDAY, APRIL 25.

Particulars of the Sinking of the Wm. gers Safe-Boat and Cargo a Total Loss.

The fact of the sinking of the emigrant have already published, but we gather the following particulars of the accident from the St. Louis Democrat of yesterday:

The Wm. Baird was bound from Cincinnati to Sioux City, and was unusually deeply laden for a boat going up the Misseuri. She was also full of passengers, mostly emigrants, with wagons, cattle, mules, farming implements, etc. On Tuesday morning, about nine c'cleck, when in the bend, about one mile below Waverly, the tiller rope parted, and the boat, being a stern-wheeler, changed her course and ran with much force against the bank. It was supposed afterward by the pilots, who examined the place where she struck, that she ran upon a snag or stump which they discovered close to the bank.

The boat began to fill and afterward to careen rapidly, and this caused so much alarm, especially on the lower deck, that the passengers were almost frantic. Even the cattle and mules seemed instinctively aware of the impending danger, for they struggled terribly to free themselves, and rendered "confusion worse onfounded."

No efforts could save the boat. She continned to careen, and the chimneys went overboard with a crash that was not calculated to allay the dread of the terror-stricken passengers. The officers, being apprehensive that the cabin would slide off, under the pressure of the hurricane-deck load, and carry away a number of passengers, had a lot of wagons, shingles, etc., thrown overboard. Fortunately, two flat-boats were near at hand, and in these and the steamer's yawl all the passengers were conveyed on shore. All the live stock also were taken ashore, with the exception of two head of oxen, which were lost. When the pilots left the sunken steamer the water was nearly up to her hurricane-deck on one side, and she was getting deeper. The boat and portion of the cargo are a total loss.

The Wm. Baird left Cincinnati on the 6th inst., and a considerable part of her cargo was lumber. She was built at Pittsburg four years ago, and was owned by Capt. Wm. T. Dunning, her commander, and a Mr. Dolson, of New Orleans. She was valued at $10,000, and not insured. Her freight list was insured in Cincinnati for $2,000.

THE OBERLIN WAR .- The Cleveland Herald informs us that about ten o'clock on Friday morning, Mr. Bushnell, who was convicted in the resoue case, was taken by the United States Marshal from the jail of the county and conveyed to the Marshal's room, in the government building, where he was confined. This sudden change, remarks the Herald, is supposed to have reference to an anticipated writ from the Supreme Court of Ohio, at Columbus, lookthe getting of Bushnell out of the Marshal's custody, as news was brought by the night train from Columbus that Judge Spalding is there seeking a writ of habens corpus. The Herald publishes other specu-lations as to the objects sought to be secured by the change, and then adds, in a note headed Later and Important:

We are informed that the present intention of the United States Court is to sentence Bushnell just previous to the adjournment of Court this (Friday) evening, and then hurry him off at once to the jail of some Democratic county.

A HANDSONE PRESENT .- The Prince Regent of Prussia has presented Mr. Charles Gibson, of St. Louis, with a magnificent pair of porcelain vases. They are nearly four feet high, and adorned with the most exquisite views of the Palace of Sans Souci, the Palace of Pots-dam, the Palace of the Prince Regent, and other Prussian scencry and various other devices. Several years ago, Mr. Gibson was employed to bring suit for the King of Prussia against the representatives of one of his postmasters, who had embezzled a large amount of money and fied to St. Louis, where he died. After much litigation he succeeded in obtain-ing a judgment for the whole amount claimed; and this present is made for the purpose of present is made for the purpose of expressing the Prince Regent's satisfaction Democrat.

STATE TREASURER .- On the suggestion of certain Democratic papers to name Geo. C. Dodge, Esq., of Cleveland, for Treasurer of the State, the Cleveland Herald makes the following remarks: Mr. Dodge was Treasurer of this county six years, and was a faithful, honest, and considerate officer. When the Demo-erats get themselves into shape—if ever that day comes—so as to carry the State, we hope they will make Mr. Dodge Treasurer, for the people's money will be safe in his hands.

An old man, calling himself by the name Davis, visited friend Patterson, of Woodland, Ohio, on the 5th inst., and asked lodging for the night, which was granted. Next day he departed for Berlin, Shelby County, where he lay down and fell asleep forever. Before leaving the Pattersons, he gave them a bundle of old MSS,, and informed them that his real name was Thomas Granger, but that he had not used it for seventy years. The Pattersons say the MSS are highly interesting, and that it is their intention to publish them.

On Thursday, a laborer named Sullivan, while in an altercation with a fellow laborer on board the John Ishmael, a resident of Coalport, Coshecton County, and a very worthy young man, was killed on Friday last, by the acci-dental felling upon him of a large rock in a coal-pit near Dresden. GLEANINGS FROM OUR EXCHANGES. PITTENDUG.—The Dispatch of Saturday says:

Yesterday was a wet, disagreeable day, a light drizzling rain falling aimest without cessation from morning till night. The river is about at a stand, and yesterday evening appeared to be swelling slightly. Boubtless the rains of the past week will give us another rise of a few feet, as they seem to have extended generally ever the country. On the what business was suil. Very little freight was shipped, and the only activity was in discharging the cargoes of the houts just arrived. The only change to note in freights is a reduction to Nashville. Iron and nails are now shipping at 20c. Steambout-men seem to have recovered their usual equanimity, and view the present unfavorable aspect of business with a degree of cheerful resignation hardly to be expected. There is a good time coming. The arrivals yesterday were the Ida May, with a fair trip from Dubuque; the touncil Buttf, also well filled, from St. Louis; the Tigross from timinant, and the Emma Graham from Zanesville. The Cheviot came in from Wheeling, and left for the same port. The Cambridge to St. Louis, and the Economy to Cincinnati, left with average trips. PITTERUNG. - The Dispatch of Saturday says:

LOUISVILLE. - We clip the following from the Cour fer of Saturday:

ier of Saturday:

The river, as anticipated, commenced rising yesterday from the effects of the heavy rains, with eight feet atsamboat water on the Falis last sevening. During the previous twenty-four hours the rise had been fully twelve inches, with no hope of abatement, as we have had almost constant rains for forty-eight hours. The rain at times poured down in torrents, but yesterday it was lighter, though steadily raining most of the day.

The officers of the James Montgomery, the latest arrival, report the Mississippi rising from New Orleans to Lake Providence, and from that point to Memphis it was about at a stand, or swelling slowly, and failing from Memphis to Cairo.

The Arlaneas River was reported rising fast at Fert Smith, with heavy rains, though at the mouth of the river the Mississippi had forced its waters back to a good distance.

During the trip of the Montgomery a deck passenger was brutally murdered by David Peoples, also a deck passenger, the particulars of which are given in another column. The officers of the boat promptly arrested the murderer and brought him to this ciry.

St. Louis.—The Republican of Saturday says:

arrested the murderer and brought him to this city.

Sr. Louis.—The Republican of Saturday says:

The river has swelled about 1% inches vestorday, and was rising slowly at dark. The Hilmos River is about stationary. The Mississippi is reported rising protty rapidly from Rock Island to Keokuk, and it is coming up fast at Keokuk. The last arrivals from the Missiouri report that stream falling, with five feet in the channel from St. Joseph down.

Rain continued to fail in torronts all Thursday, and yesterday until two o'clock P.M., when the clouds broke away and the sun came out once more. After a very few minutes' sunshine the sun disappeared, and the sky clouded over again, but without rain. The temperature is cool. The prospects at this writing eight o'clock P. M., are for the weakler. The contant rain suspended business ou the levee. Very little was tlone yesterday in the way of receiving or discharging. charging.
